

THE HOUSE AS SUPPORT OF SOCIAL AND FAMILY RELATIONS: A CASE STUDY IN THE VILLAGE OF MARGINEA, SUCEAVA COUNTY

Lecturer PhD. Arch. Andra JACOB LARIONESCU¹

Abstract

The paper analyses the homes of Romanian migrants built in rural areas, after the fall of the communist regime, as a support of social relations. It also examines the building and furnishing of homes in relation to the family and gender. Indeed, the migration strategy of Romanian migrants from rural areas consists in a collective effort and close cooperation between members of the extended family, in order to access all the resources required for the construction of their homes.

Keywords: home-gender relationship, home - family relationship, migration, village of origin
